Easy pencil drawing ideas for beginners

It's shocking, but all these images are realistic pencil drawings. yes, you read it right. Each of the artistic drawings found in this catalog is an extremely detailed pencil sketch, and many of them come in stunning black and white. To create these pencil designs, talented artists have honed their pencils (if you need an upgrade, see our selection of the best pencils) and pulled out some expert techniques (to learn some, here are pencil drawing techniques from the pros) to create some incredible art. Our roundup contains celebrity portraits, animals, natural scenes, everyday objects and famous landmarks. The range of topics means there's something to inspire you in every entry. Enjoy... J.D HilberryThough J.D Hilberry admits that initially wanted to be a musician rather than an artist, he has become a master of realistic pencil designs. Hilberry's website contains many amazing examples of his work, as well as tutorials and tips to help you create your own artistic designs. In the video above, Hilberry talks through some of the two of the process behind his self-portrait pencil sketch, which is based on the idea of an artist put themselves back together after being torn by critics. It's so realistic, we have to keep looking at it to make sure the artwork isn't really torn and stuck back together. How people see the world reflected in their eyes (Image credit: Veri Aproiyatno)Indonesian artist Veri Aproiyatno explores human form and emotion through his hyper-realistic pencil drawings. This series, titled Witnesses, shows how people feel about the world through reflection in their eyes, set in pencil, acrylic and charcoal. The gleaming student and the image are unlike the matte finish of the eye bulb itself, resulting in a mixture of textures, which jump off the page. There is amazing detail in the naturalness of the eye itself, and hidden within the reflected image.03. Kelvin Okafor - Nawell II(Nawell's Interlude II is one of the pencil drawings in the Interlude Okafor series (Image credit: Kelvin Okafor)Kelvin Okafor is an artist from the UK whose intention is to invoke a real emotional response. Each piece is a pencil sketch and using the tool that dubs a humble instrument, he created the Interlude series by drawing portraits of models, when at their most serene, in their comfortable environments. Nawell II (above) is one of those pencil designs. Okafor explains on his website: I like to paint faces. Every person tells me interesting story regardless of age, gender, race or background ... I visually dissect facial features. I study them and then put them back together as pieces in a puzzle. 04. CJ HendryCJ Hendry worked mainly in black and white creating pencil designs related to popular culture (such as this Chanel bottle) until her collaboration with Christian Louboutin in 2017. Complementary colors created entirely using color colors Although you would be forgiven for thinking, instead of creating a pencil sketch, he had just squirted a huge dollop of paint on the wall. Using 12 different pencil colors to create a single hue, and layering them to create the texture and violet required, he created these oil color splurges in every color for Art Basel in Hong Kong. 05. Arinze Stanley – Black NoiseArinze Stanley has honed his skills since the age of six Nigerian artist Arinze Stanley had a long time to practice his stunning pencil art: He's been in the making of art projects since the age of six. Growing up around his family's paper business inspired his love of design, and he expressed himself through what he calls his three Ps: Patience, Practice and Perseverance. Most of the time it's almost like losing control of my pencils and like transferring energy, art flows through me from my pencil to paper, he says.06 Jono Dry – PreyJono Dry usually works on graphite on large paper or board surfaces Self-taught South African artist Jono Dry has quickly earned a name for himself with the unique style of design that combines photorealism and surrealism on a massive scale. His work has the look of vintage photography, but usually with an alarming or absurd twist. If you like the look of it, it has prints available to buy through etsy shop.07's. Franco Chun - Arne HathawayAmazingly, Franco Chun had no formal artistic education. This incredible portrait of Hollywood actress Anne Hathaway is the work of Franco Chun, a self-taught artist from Italy, who has gotten everything he knows about drawing from reading textbooks and plenty of practice.08 Paul Cadden - ShowerPaul Cadden's images are frighteningly realistic. When we first saw the work of Scottish artist Paul Cadden, it took a while to realise that they were actually pencil drawings - the surrealist artist used only graphite and chalk to create these stunning images. Although the drawings and paintings I make are based on a series of photo and video stills, I use softer and more complex focus on the subject, so the resulting art presents as a living, tangible being, he explains. These objects and scenes in my drawings are so meticulously detailed to create the illusion of a new reality not seen in the original photo. 09. Cath Riley – FleshThis series by Cath Riley features surreal pencil drawings of Cath Riley's flesh. Artistic designs are amazing to see, but she sees her surreal work as just a stage in the ongoing evolutionary process of exploration and development. Now it moves to more experimental and abstract in her work, including very large-scale drawings based around the human figure. Her incredible pencil designs are included in collections around the world and she has worked with clients such as Nike, GQ, M&C Saatchi, The Economist and The New York Times.10. Armin Mersmann - The work of TreesArmin Mersmann has in exhibitions around the world the German artist Armin Mersmann is the man behind this cold forest scene, which elevates the humble pencil sketch to new heights. Although he also works with oils, Mersmann is best known for his intense naturalistic graphite designs. His work has been presented in more than 150 exhibitions and has won him over 30 awards. The very act of designing each branch, twig, highlight and shade, making textures from extreme winter skins to the silkscreen of new-fallen snow, turns the scene into an intimate journey. This business is significantly different from simply taking a photo or just being there, he explains on his website. The drawing process immersed me for hundreds of hours, interpreting and translating what I saw and felt from hundreds of reference photos, collected branches, branches and re-released the site. 11. Diego Fazio - Sensazioni It is almost impossible to believe that this incredible image is a pencil drawing titled Sensazioni (senses, in English) this mind-blowing pencil drawing created by artist Diego Fazio. In a period of about 200 hours, Fazio drew this intricate piece, which we still - no matter how long we look at it - can't believe is a plan. Just amazing.12. Stefan Marcu - GorillaStefan Marcu pushes himself to create his best possible work. From the age of five, I started painting, and over time I added more skills such as drawing, painting, sculpture, all kinds of graphic design, caricature and digital photography, explains Stefan Marcu, the artist behind this surprisingly realistic gorilla portrait. My focus is on the study of art and my personal development in all its disciplines, and I am obsessed with excellence in creating any product. Marcu created this study of a gorilla as his entry into the UK's National Open Art Competition. I'm happy with the piece as it personally represents a big leap in scale, detail and patience, he says. It's about double the size of my previous job and I learned a lot working on this beast. 13. Giacomo Burattini - ApnoeaGiacomo Burattini believes that his work emphasizes the beauty of imperfection. Surrealism in my work displays the beauty of imperfections perfectly, opening a door inside the subject not usually depicted in real life, says Italian artist Giacomo Burattini, who painted this unusual portrait. I believe that reality is a beauty in itself, so I don't have to find ways to hide the imperfections of human nature so my work shows the perfection of life imperfections. Burattini found an audience by sharing his pencil designs on Tumblr, Facebook and where he regularly shares his works in progress. This artistic design was created with black pencils, graphite pencils and charcoal.14 Paul Lung - Mui ChuPaul Lung specializes in super-realistic fur. This mindblowingly realistic image of a cat was created by traditional artist Paul Lung. Hong Kong-based creative portfolio for Deviant Art Art realistic portraits of humans and animals. The time at which everyone gets depends on his subject, with this particular A2 pencil design taking the lung about 60 hours to complete. Next page: most incredibly realistic pencil designs
